Moondog Digital Taps All Media Guide for CD Information and Cover Art

Indianapolis, IN – May 31, 2006 – Moondog Digital has upgraded their service with All Media Guide’s data service. This high quality data will be the primary source for album art, artist name, album name, genre, and track information.

“Consumers demand high quality information for their music collections and we’ll deliver it,” said Moondog Digital’s Founder, Craig Kelker. “Signing with All Media Guide is a huge leap in solidifying our abilities to meet the requirements of our patrons.”

With the addition of album art, installations of media servers and the recently updated Video iPod will showcase the colorful images provided by All Media Guide. “Adding album art will open markets for our service in professional installations as well,” said Craig.

All Media Guide, based in Ann Arbor, Michigan, is a leading provider of media management technologies, editorial content, and metadata that support and enhance the merchandising and use of entertainment media. AMG has created the world’s largest and most comprehensive information databases for music, video, DVDs, and video games. The AMG databases—All Music Guide, All Movie Guide, and All Game Guide—are licensed by leading consumer electronics manufacturers, major retailers and Internet sites. They are available to the public through its websites (www.allmusic.com; www.allmovie.com; www.allgame.com) and through its published works.
